OTAKU 4.2

BHASKAR

30 SEPTEMBER 2025

KNOW YO MODS

Even though no one asked!

REDDIT MODS

(literal psychos)

DISCORD MODS

(as crazy as reddit mods)

r/animeindian

u/mayicuminyourass

Don't let the username fool you – this guy is pure gold. He's our resident isekai expert who has literally watched every anime in the genre (and I mean every one). As one of our founding mods, he's been here from the beginning, building the foundation of what we've become today. What sets him apart is his incredible personality. He's genuinely sweet to everyone he meets and has this natural humor that can brighten anyone's day. There's something magnetic about talking with him – spend an hour in conversation and you'll understand why everyone on the team adores him. He's proof that you should never judge someone by their username.

6.9k 420 106

r/animeindian

u/SRTrusher AKA u/CrusherNutter

He is known as "Owner." He’s an unapologetically chill yet masochistic gamer who treats Sekiro like it’s pure adrenaline, scoffing at games everyone else adores. Late-night gaming marathons are his battlefield, where savage roasts leave others in tears and his smooth talk could charm even a potato.

He’s also a founding moderator and the source of some of the most interesting lore on our team. When he shows up, you know something’s about to get chaotic or settled—there’s rarely an in-between—and the rest of us secretly enjoy handling the aftermath. What truly sets him apart is his uncanny ability to read the room: he’s casual when needed, serious when it matters, and always carries himself like a gentleman, especially toward the women on our team. Everyone loves him for being uniquely himself.

His love life is just as chaotic as his presence in the chat. He has a special type of love-hate relationship with girls; either they fall head over heels for him, or they literally want to end him. After enough relationship wipeouts, he's sworn off dating, embracing solo runs not just in games but in love too. He's irreplaceable, unpredictable, and unforgettable.

6.9k 420 106

r/animeindian

u/sliceoflife_daisuki

This person is fascinatingly complex. At first, he comes across as shy, really sweet, and approachable, but when his darker side slips through, it’s genuinely intense—a face he only reveals to a selected few, which makes those moments feel special and built on trust. He's one of our best news contributors on r/animeindian, and like everyone on our team, he’s incredibly skilled, with a kindness that truly makes him stand out. He honestly feels too good for places like Reddit, possessing a quality that seems above the usual internet drama.

This is likely why we call him our anime news junkie; he somehow knows every plot twist before the episode even drops. If he’s not refreshing Crunchyroll for updates, he’s hoarding five-star gacha waifus like there’s no tomorrow—he’d seriously marry one if they existed. Yet, behind the memes and waifu obsession, he's also a role model in how he carries himself: confident, reliable, and just a little mysterious. He loves coding, has some intriguing dark fantasies that add to his charm, and if you ping him on Discord, expect a reply before you can even blink.

6.9k 420 106

r/animeindian

u/hiruhiko

He has an incredible heart and offers genuinely thoughtful insights on our subreddit's content. He’s the voice of reason in our community’s endless debates, with arguments sharp enough to slice through confusion like a katana. As a moderator, he’s known for treating every discussion with respect and patience, making him the go-to person when topics get heated. When he approves something, you know it’s quality, and with his friendly demeanor and ability to understand both sides of a situation, everyone knows a nod from Hiruhiko means a job well done.

Our ex-mod Urban still laughs about their first meeting. He jokingly asked for “noods” (noodles), and Hiruhiko played along perfectly. It was then that Urban knew he was chill, kind, and someone he could be casual with. Since then, they've worked on serious projects together, and Hiruhiko has consistently been an incredible collaborator. Calm under pressure, sharp in debates, and kind at heart—that’s Hiruhiko in every sense.

6.9k 420 106

r/animeindian

u/Romi_Z

Simply put, he is one of our best mods. When something goes wrong, you can rely on this guy completely. Everything about him is top-tier – his judgment, his approach to moderation, his interactions with the community. He recently got into Blue Archive and is completely addicted to it now, which is honestly adorable to watch. I'd argue he's even better than some of our founding mods, which is saying something. He never judges anyone and welcomes newcomers with genuine warmth. He's patient when explaining things and has this gift for making people feel included. One thing that cracks me up: he lives on cup noodles and snacks. Seriously, bro, try cooking a real meal once in a while!

6.9k 420 106

r/animeindian

u/LinearArray

This guy is living Reddit to its absolute fullest, and I mean that in the best way possible. He's genuinely good-hearted, but once he starts chatting, things get beautifully chaotic. He's a nerd in all the right ways and shares that love of coding with several others on our team. If I had to describe the "cool mod" archetype, it would be him. He's got this shy quality that's endearing, though he has this habit of disappearing right after saying hello, which has become his trademark. Despite that quirk, he embodies what you'd want in a moderator – knowledgeable, fair, and genuinely invested in the community.

6.9k 420 106

r/animeindian

u/logan-cycle-809

Meet the absolute embodiment of sweetness and friendliness—Logan, the lifeline of our subreddit chats. From the very start, when he joined our group as a mod, he made it instantly clear he was the best. He sparks conversations that keep the community buzzing, making sure no thread goes quiet while behind the scenes he's the unsung hero co-managing events and handling all things. He'll reply to you as soon as possible, excelling in his role and somehow getting more done in the shortest time than anyone else. New users immediately feel at home the moment he welcomes them with open arms, his warmth making him the friendly face of our team. But his approachable nature comes with one major condition: a shared love for One Piece. Logan is so addicted that he'll practically force you to watch it and consider it the best anime ever, and if you don't, be ready for the tears. He's a true fan who goes wild for One Piece and will even try to bribe you to admit it's the greatest. It sure is the best anime (now send 10k through UPI)!

He's also a little chaotic in the best way, a hardworking force who's addicted to coffee (I swear it flows through his veins instead of blood), and he's proof that being both approachable and unstoppable can go hand in hand. He's the kind of teammate who keeps the energy alive, the community moving forward, and the rest of us motivated.

6.9k 420 106

r/animeindian

u/GothOutOfWater

She is the unofficial mother of our Reddit group chat, a seasoned community guru who nurtures every member with care. She masterminds all our subreddit events, earning the affectionate nickname "Goth didi" for her protective vibe, and her art skills are so lifelike we're half-convinced her drawings will jump off the page. No punchline is too dark for our goth didi—she's hilarious and the first female mod our sub has ever had, more than worthy of everyone's respect. She also heads our monthly magazine "Otaku Bhaskar", which was her idea and a project she genuinely rules everyone's hearts with. You might not always like her decisions, but once you get to know her, you can never hate her.

She's the best, cutest, sweetest (though allergic to actual sweets), and coolest person I've encountered on Reddit. She's practically living in our server, never sleeping and constantly banning rule breakers. Ask her if she's eaten, and she'll likely reply with a simple "Yeah, coffee." She can be fragile and gentle one moment, but when she gets serious, everyone knows it's time to pay attention—people are often scared of her because, while she's pretty chill, if you break the rules, be ready for the punishment (she's a teacher, after all). I could honestly write pages about her; making her a mod was hands down the best decision r/animeindian has ever made. That's just the truth.

6.9k 420 106

r/animeindian

u/iam_urban

He is the soul of our Reddit group chat, the kind of presence you notice most when he vanishes and suddenly everyone's asking, "Where's Urban?" He's a comedian at heart, never missing a chance to roast himself just to keep the laughs rolling. His "perfect" English is legendary until his desi Inglish slips out, and then his storytelling takes a life of its own—spiraling into epic lore with wild, unexpected plot twists. Beneath the jokes, though, he's humble, kind, and prefers to be treated as just another member rather than the mod he is (maybe because he thinks mods are gay).

But don't mistake the humor for lack of dedication—Urban is our sub's goofy heartthrob, funny and chaotic with a heart of gold. This ex-mod (who still volunteers) has a love-hate relationship with r/animeindian, often leaving and rejoining, yet always showing up when it matters most. He has a massive fan following (I mean who else has a whole subreddit dedicated to them?), sometimes messing up in ways only he can, but always stepping up to fix his mistakes with surprising seriousness. Helpful, lovable, and endlessly entertaining, he's one of those rare people you simply can't help but love. Without Urban, things just wouldn't feel the same.

6.9k 420 106

r/animeindian

Sun (xena_.33

The Man, The Myth, The Legend: Meet SUN

Next up in our administrative hall of fame is SUN (xena_.33), one of our highest-ranking kouchos and the true guardian of our Discord realm. Rumor has it he’s a CCP-deployed AI agent, and honestly, with his perfect English and rule-book zeal, we're not entirely convinced it's just a rumor. He's strict when he needs to be but endlessly supportive when you're in a pinch, making him one of the nicest and most useful guys around.

When he's not busy keeping us all in line, SUN is a man of many talents. By day, he’s a surprisingly lazy but incredibly talented novelist, weaving intricate worlds in his spare time. By night, you might find him brushing up on Mandarin, French, or whatever new language has caught his eye. He's also known to indulge in a shocking amount of Clash of Clans, proving that even a rule-following, AI-like perfectionist has a few human-like vices. Despite all the teasing, his encouragement always shines through, reminding us that he’s got a real heart beneath that seemingly steel-clad code. What can we say? We're all a little starstruck.

6.9k 420 106

r/animeindian

Ravvaiddli

Meet Ravvaidli: The Voice of Reason

Continuing our lineup of key players, let's introduce Ravvaidli, our resident voice chat champion and unofficial Discord landlord. This guy practically lives in voice channels, and if Discord charged rent, he'd be thousands in debt! While the rest of us are busy typing, he's the one managing server logistics and helping everyone out with actual human conversation, proving to be the team's go-to problem-solver. He's also the moderator for the r/gamingindian sub and one of the sweetest, most multi-talented kids you'll ever find. Seriously, Ravvaidli, we're a little jealous—and we think you should study more, too!

Now, according to Ravvaidli himself, he's the "corniest" of them all. He also claims he's a "trash" novelist with "no personality at all," a statement that's frankly laughable given how much time he spends helping everyone out. But the real running joke around the server? Everyone is convinced he's secretly dating a girl moderator, though he's far too busy being the team's problem-solver to even notice the matchmaking chaos happening around him. What a sweet, oblivious kid.

6.9k 420 106

r/animeindian

Aizen

The Coolest Nerd: Meet Aizen

Next up, we have Aizen, the polite gentleman who brings a touch of calm to our chaos-filled server. While others are busy starting drama, he’s quietly supporting every mod decision, making him the perfect team player. He's our little "W" person—a true overachiever and the coolest nerd you'll ever meet.

Aizen is one of our inactive senseis who is friends with literally everyone. He also has a legendary love affair with mathematics that borders on pure romance. Sadly, his studies have stolen him away from our daily antics, leaving behind only fond memories and a server full of unsolved equations. We miss his quiet support and friendly presence, but we're also super proud of him for chasing his dreams. Come back and visit soon, Aizen!

6.9k 420 106

r/animeindian

Dark Knight

Meet Dark Knight: The Sarcasm Machine

And now, for the resident sarcasm machine, Dark Knight. If wit were a weapon, this guy would be banned in several countries. He's a master of the snarky comeback and a genuinely hilarious guy, with a sense of humor that's as sharp as a tack.

Dark Knight has also turned matching profile pictures with server members into an art form, creating the most random squads you'll ever see. But don't let the sarcasm fool you; he's also a problem-solving hero and a surprisingly good chess player. When he's not saving the day, you can find him streaming, where his commentary is so much better than his gameplay that you'll be tempted to just watch his face. He's the perfect mix of helpful and hilariously snarky, and we wouldn't have him any other way.

6.9k 420 106

r/animeindian

MoonKnight

Meet Moon Knight: The Most... Unique?

And now, for the one and only Moon Knight. While he proudly holds the title of "most... unique" among us, he's a sensei who brings a special kind of chaos to the server. With a humor that no one quite understands, you'll often find him laughing at his own jokes, which we've come to appreciate as a charming quirk. He's also known to ban people for no reason, so you've been warned!
Moon Knight's favorite hobby is his self-proclaimed quest to find girls, a mission he diligently pursues across every social media platform imaginable. He's an unabashed aesthete for girls, and he's not shy about sharing his "knowledge" on how to find them. He's also mastered the art of the random disappearance, vanishing like a player with high ping, only to return and bless us with his presence—and a whole new level of chaos. Despite his unpredictable nature, he's a truly sweet and lovely person who always finds time to help everyone. He's a genuine gem who holds a "special place" in his heart for other men.
As for his wish to be featured in the "most active" or "keyboard warriors" section of our magazine—consider it done, Moon Knight. Here's your entire page. You've earned it.

6.9k 420 106

r/animeindian

Artorias

The Backbone of the Server: Meet Artorias

Every great community needs a reliable backbone, and for us, that's Artorias. This is the guy who shows up for every single event, helps run the show, and even takes charge of movie nights without ever complaining about the workload. When everyone else is just having a good time, he's the one quietly making sure it all runs smoothly.

Artorias is a genuine team player and a genuinely good person. When he's not busy keeping our community in line with his solid moderation skills, you'll find him dominating games like the seasoned player he is. He's a true leader who makes everything on the server run a little bit better, and we honestly don't know what we'd do without him.

6.9k 420 106

r/animeindian

iicy

The Life of the Party: Meet IICY

Meet IICY, the wizard behind our community's hottest video edits, turning raw clips into hype-worthy highlights that make everyone want to rewatch them. He’s not just a master of the digital realm, though. In voice chat, he's the absolute life of the party, bringing a contagious energy that keeps the conversation flowing and the laughter coming. He has a way of making even the most mundane chat feel like an event.

However, all that fun comes with a playful edge. The moment someone challenges his opinion or dares to poke fun, sparks are sure to fly in a friendly but fiery debate. This perfect balance of easy-going charm and a competitive spirit is exactly what keeps our server from ever having a dull moment. IICY is the perfect mix of creative genius and lively banter, and our community is all the better for it.

6.9k 420 106

r/animeindian

Zaddy

Meet The Creative Ghost, Zaddy

Next up is Zaddy, our ace editor and the creative mastermind behind two—soon to be three—viral server edits that had everyone talking. His video skills are legendary, transforming simple clips into polished, hype-worthy showcases that truly capture the spirit of our community. He’s a true force in the editing room, but that’s not the only place he holds court.

Zaddy is practically glued to voice chat around the clock, where he's a constant presence and a key part of our daily conversations. However, he treats our text channels like a VIP lounge, making only rare and coveted appearances. This quiet approach to text is a stark contrast to his mischievous nature; he has a playful habit of catfishing members just for laughs, adding a layer of hilarious unpredictability to the server. He's the quiet storm that keeps our community both polished with his incredible edits and hilariously unpredictable with his antics. With his seamless teamwork among the mods and a knack for keeping us all on our toes, Zaddy is a true gem.

6.9k 420 106

r/animeindian

Ace of hearts

Meet The Ace of Hearts

True to her name, Ace of Hearts is adored by everyone the moment she joins a channel. Her boundless joy and quick wit have a way of turning even the gloomiest threads into laughter fests, making her a true ray of sunshine in the community. She's the newest face on the mod team, but she's already fit right in, proving that some people are just natural-born leaders.

She moves seamlessly between roles, comforting a new member one minute and cracking a perfectly-timed joke with a veteran the next. Her ability to make everyone feel welcome and valued, regardless of their status, is a testament to her genuinely kind and bubbly personality. Ace of Hearts is the kind of person who just makes the entire community a better, more joyful place to be, and we're so lucky to have her.

6.9k 420 106

r/animeindian

MII (aka YUMI)

Meet The Queen of Vibes: Mii

Next up is Mii, the one who keeps our text channels alive with her delightfully awkward, light banter. With her, no topic is ever off-limits, and her unique brand of humor always makes for a good read. She has a talent for turning even a quiet text channel into a lively and engaging space, simply by being herself.
But her real talent lies in the music VCs. With her impeccable taste, her killer playlists turn every voice channel into an instant dance party, transforming quiet nights into a full-blown concert. She's so good, you'll find yourself shazaming her playlist to find out the names of the songs. Mii is friends with literally everyone, but that hasn't stopped the server's whisper network from buzzing about her "secret" in-server romance. We don't have all the details, but her playful personality and undeniable charm are clearly working their magic. Mii is a true gem who brings the fun, the music, and the drama (in the best way) to our community.

6.9k 420 106

r/animeindian

Omen

Meet Omen: The King of Chaos

Our newest Koucho/higher admin, Omen, has arrived, and things just got a whole lot more interesting. Don't let his title fool you—this guy is a walking, talking paradox. A true Valorant aficionado, he's also known to loudly declare how terrible Jujutsu Kaisen is, a habit we can only assume is a byproduct of his deeply-held rom-com anime obsession. And speaking of obsessions, let's not forget his legendary "Waguri-over-oxygen" complex.

But Omen is more than just a guy who takes an unhealthy amount of rom-com anime. He's also the self-proclaimed "hottest member on the team," and his relentless "charm offensive" in DMs proves he truly believes it—even when he's sliding into them with the most depressing content imaginable. This is the same guy who's mastered the art of "fake online relationships" that fool absolutely no one and who expertly uses rage-baiting to stir up the Discord server. Yet, despite all the digital chaos, his kind heart somehow manages to shine through all the noise. What can we say? We're all a little a-Omen-zed by him.

6.9k 420 106